1. Sample Summary

There are many factors that qualify Chief Eta of Tama as a dictator. Firstly, he subjects his people to live in perpetual fear. This is demonstrated by his cruel act of forcing his people to worship his sunglasses which he wants them to believe represents him. Secondly, Tama is not a free society. When Ashu refuses to bow—thus exercising his freedom of speech, Chief Eta orders for his arrest. Thirdly, Chief Eta violates the human rights of his people. Why would a ruler force his own subject to shoot an apple on a child's head? This is outright dictatorship!
